Description: Mente en Proceso consiste en una serie de 8 sesiones interactivas y reflexivas de dos horas. Los participantes examinarán las siete habilidades para la vida, basadas en investigaciones, que determinan el poderoso potencial para ayudar a los niños a tener éxito social, emocional e intelectualmente a corto y largo plazo. Estas siete habilidades para la vida incluyen: enfoque y autocontrol, toma de perspectiva, comunicación, hacer conexiones, pensamiento crítico, asumir desafíos y aprendizaje autodirigido y comprometido. Debido a que estas son habilidades que todos los adultos pueden enseñar y todos los niños pueden aprender, esta capacitación está abierta a todas las personas que trabajan con niños pequeños, incluidos los padres/cuidadores.

Special Note: Mente en Proceso (Mind in the Making) es un programa de Bezos Family Foundation. Está diseñado con la intención de compartir la ciencia del aprendizaje de los niños con profesionales de la primera infancia, pero también es apropiado para el público en general y las familias. Para completar con éxito, los estudiantes deben completar los 8 módulos/16 horas para recibir crédito. No hay fechas de recuperación programadas/planificadas. Estos son entrenamientos de módulos muy interactivos con mucha participación en clase y actividades. Los alumnos recibirán una copia de los materiales y recursos de capacitación. La sesion 1 y 8 son en persona y las sesiones 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 y 7 son virtuales. Los alumnos deben completar una encuesta al final de la serie.

OUTCOMES:
Definir las 7 habilidades esenciales para la vida y discutir por qué son importantes tanto para los adultos como para los niños.

Examinar cómo aprenden los adultos, la investigación que explica por qué esto es importante y cómo se pueden aplicar estas habilidades a la vida de los niños.

Desarrollar metas personales para cada una de las 7 habilidades para la vida.
