Question: Can you share some more details on what the game entails?

Answer: The original idea was something like a game board with a grid of categories at different point values or a game board with a pathway with different color squares leading to an endpoint. The different categories that could correspond to different point values or different colors on a game board pathway are Language & Literacy, Mathematics & Science, Gross and Fine Motor, Social Studies, and Social Emotional. Children will be asked a question or asked to perform an activity at each square. We are open to design.
